March 11th
Hi Friends –

Last marked the one hundred anniversary of the birth of pianist, composer, and arranger Mary Lou Williams. Her music has been a major influence on the development of jazz in nearly every era. With records such as "Poinciana," "My Favorite Things," and "Blues in the Night," her music is as familiar to jazz lovers as it is to the general public.

Mary Lou Williams: The Next Hundred Years

Mary Lou Williams: The Next Hundred Years. This CD features a selection of tracks from her final studio session before her death in 1996, including "Blues in the Night," "Poinciana," and "I'm Gonna Be My Own Woman."

Mary Lou Williams was a prolific composer and arranger, writing over 1,000 compositions during her career. She is remembered as one of the most important and influential female jazz musicians in history.

Mike DiRubbo's previous release matched his alto saxophone with vibes in a pianoless quartet. His latest CD takes a different, but equally creative and important project. Thanks very much.
